SBWIB Becomes the First Workforce Board in the U.S. to Register Non-Traditional Apprenticeship Program Nationally

The SBWIB has made history by becoming the FIRST WORKFORCE BOARD in the nation to register their non-traditional apprenticeship programs for national use. This milestone will allow SBWIB to support companies with apprenticeship programs that are scalable and transferable across all 50 states, helping businesses expand their skilled labor pool wherever they operate.

Press release here

Supporting the SBWIB's work to develop registered apprenticeship programs is funding provided by the DOL ABA Grant, the SBWIB's efforts were featured in the ABA newsletter with mention of the board's achievement of registering national apprenticeship standards.

South Bay Workforce Investment Board Becomes First in Nation to Secure National Apprenticeship Standard

The Department of Labor's Employment and Training Administration announced that South Bay Workforce Investment Board (WB) is now the first WB to have a national apprenticeship standard approved, marking a significant milestone in workforce development.

"First workforce board in the country to have a national program," beamed South Bay Workforce Investment Board Director of Business Services & Apprenticeship Chris Cagle in an emailed statement.

This approval highlights the growing role of WBs in connecting employers, apprentices, and training programs to meet local labor demands. With this national standard, the West Coast WB is poised to enhance apprenticeship opportunities in key industries, ensuring that workers gain valuable skills and credentials recognized across the country.

WBs are established under the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act and are local boards tasked with overseeing workforce development initiatives in their regions. The boards function by identifying gaps in employment, partnering with local businesses, and creating programs to train workers in high-demand fields.

South Bay Workforce Investment Board Awarded $1 Million Grant to Expand Apprenticeship Programs for Disadvantaged Youth

Hawthorne, CA. The South Bay Workforce Investment Board (SBWIB) has been awarded a $1 million California Opportunity Youth Apprenticeship (COYA) Grant by the California Department of Industrial Relations and its Division of Apprenticeship Standards. The funding will be used to create and expand apprenticeship programs for disadvantaged youth across the region and surrounding areas.

The two-year project will leverage new and existing community partnerships to provide training and employment opportunities for targeted youth populations, including individuals from foster care, justice-involved youth, youth parents, individuals with disabilities, and those from low-income communities. The program aims to enroll 100 individuals, offering comprehensive support such as training, mentoring, career guidance, and placement into apprenticeship programs leading to employment.

Participants will have the opportunity to enter apprenticeship programs across five key sectors: advanced manufacturing (aerospace and biotechnology), IT, healthcare, arts, media and entertainment, and energy. The goal is to help these young individuals gain the skills and experience needed to build sustainable careers in high-demand industries.

"This grant award highlights our long-standing success in providing disadvantaged youth access to career pathways through apprenticeships, helping them secure high-paying careers," said SBWIB Executive Director Jan Vogel.

SBWIB's apprenticeship programs are employer-driven, designed to upskill current employees while developing the future workforce pipeline. For over 41 years, SBWIB has offered no cost services to residents and businesses across the South Bay region through its four One-Stop Business and Career Centers in Inglewood, Carson, Torrance, and Gardena. Youth aged 16-24 can also access specialized services through the Inglewood and Hawthorne Teen Centers.

This program is provided by equal opportunity employers. Auxiliary aids and services are available upon request to individuals with disabilities by calling CRS 1-800-735-2922.

The California Youth Apprenticeship Committee (CYAC) was convened as called for by SB 191 to develop recommendations for the Division of Apprenticeship Standards (DAS) on how to implement youth apprenticeships for in-school and out-of-school youth in California.

The South Bay Workforce Investment Board, Chris Cagle, served on the CYAC committee assisting with this work.

The resulting report provides a roadmap that aligns systems, establish education connected youth apprenticeship pathways, illustrates on ramps and off ramps to career progression, identifies resources and support for quality paid work-based learning opportunities available for youth, and connects those youth to better educational outcomes and improved economic opportunity. Recognizing employers are at the heart of an apprenticeship, this report aims to provide guidance to support business and industry leaders in establishing apprenticeships for the youth in California.

South Bay Workforce Investment Board Celebrates Upskilling of 531 Workers and Secures Additional $726,810 for Employee Training Program

Hawthorne, CA—The South Bay Workforce Investment Board (SBWIB) is pleased to announce the successful completion of an employee training program that has upskilled 531 workers across the Southland, boosting productivity and advancing career opportunities. These workers, employed in industries such as manufacturing, healthcare, information technology, and aerospace, are now earning an average wage of $43.50 per hour. The training initiatives were funded by the State of California Employment Training Panel (ETP) and administered by SBWIB.

In recognition of the program's positive outcomes, ETP has awarded SBWIB an additional $726,810 to extend the project for another two years. This new funding will allow SBWIB to continue partnering with employers to deliver targeted training that fosters innovation, increases operational efficiency, and empowers workers with new skills and advancement opportunities.

"We're thrilled, not only with the impact this program has had, but also with the new funding from ETP that will allow us to keep driving workforce development across key industries," said Jan Vogel, Executive Director of SBWIB. "This extension gives us the opportunity to upskill even more workers, helping businesses grow, while ensuring employees have the skills they need to thrive in today's economy."

Centinela Hospital Praises SBWIB's Employment Training Panel Grant Program

Centinela Hospital Medical Center in Inglewood, CA, a key participant in SBWIB's Employment Training Panel (ETP) grant program, expressed deep appreciation for the support provided through the program. "The funding from SBWIB's ETP grant has been instrumental in helping us train both our new hires and incumbent workers," said Mohammad Naser, CEO for the hospital. "This has allowed us to enhance the skills of our healthcare staff and ensure they are equipped to meet the demands of a constantly evolving healthcare environment. We are grateful for this partnership and look forward to continued collaboration with SBWIB to further strengthen our workforce."

The Airplane Factory Thrives with ETP Support

The Airplane Factory, based in Torrance, CA, has also seen benefits from SBWIB's ETP grant program. "When we first joined the ETP program, we had only 30 employees. Today, we've grown to over 100," said Matt Liknitsky, co-owner of The Airplane Factory. "This program has played an important part in our growth. With SBWIB's support, we've been able to provide essential training to our Airframe and Powerplant mechanics and aircraft assembly workers, ensuring they maintain their skills and stay up-to-date on the latest techniques. This has made our workforce more efficient and productive, which has been critical as we continue to expand. The ETP grant has been a vital tool in our growth and success."
